How to Save Money This Fall

Fall is upon us already! iMoneyCoach would like to share a few ways that you can save money during the fall season:

Rent Yard Work Equipment - instead of buying expensive machinery that is only used once or a couple times a year, check your local hardware store or rental store. You can also share equipment if you have a good relationship with your neighbors. Suppose one of you has a leaf blower and the other a snow blower - you can trade back and forth and save some money. Here is an eHow article on how to rent yard equipment.

Flex-Spending - Fall is usually the time when employees can sign up for an employer's flex-spending account which can save you money on taxes. Check with your employer to see if a flex-spending account is available and when you can sign up. Here is a video that sums up the benefits of an FSA.

Plant a Fall Veggie Garden - Many gardeners think the end of summer means the end of gardening, but it doesn't have to. You can plant a fall garden and save money on groceries and water, and you get fresh tasty food! Just be sure to check out the average first frost date in your area and count backwards from there to see when you should plant your veggies. See this blog for more information on fall gardens.

Print Coupons – This money-saver is handy all year round, but since you'll likely be spending more time inside soon it might be more convenient to print off coupons and save money on your grocery bill. Sites like Coupons.com offer hundreds of printable coupons. Hint - be sure to check with your local grocery store to make sure they will accept printed coupons.
