An Easy and Safe Way to Get Money for Your Old Electronics

With Christmas just around the corner, it is likely you are thinking about some new electronics...

But what do you do when you buy a new cell phone or computer? Do you think about selling your old electronics on eBay or craigslist, but never seem to get around to it?

Is part of the reason you don't get around to selling those old electronics because it's a hassle or you're worried about safely getting your personal information off those old gadgets before you sell them? If so, we may have a solution that will help.

Gazelle is a great way to get paid for your old gadgets. When you go to their site, you enter information about the electronic device you have, and they give you a quote and send you a box to ship it in. Once you've sent the item in and Gazelle has made sure it fits the description you gave, they send you money for it. They also wipe the personal data out and resell those gadgets in places like eBay to people who want them. This reduces waste and has created a new movement called reCommerce.

Gazelle can also be used for supporting causes and fundraising – a different way to raise money for your Boy Scouts, Cheerleading Camp, local schools, etc. People send in their old gadgets and your cause gets 100% of the value.

Save Money on Family Activities

Looking for something to do as a family? Or do you have family coming to visit for the holidays and you want to have some fun?

KidsPages.org has a calendar of all the local events happening right now. They include ideas for FREE activities as well. For example, did you know that if you have a Jefferson County Library Card you can get FREE passes to museums all over Denver?
